Growth traction in sight despite a sluggish quarterly performance

The Q2 FY16 results of Transport Corporation of India's (TCIL) fell below our expectations. The revenues of the company remained almost static on a y-o-y basis to ₹5.6 bn mainly on account of sluggish performance from transport, SCM and XPS divisions. Despite sluggish top line growth, TCIL managed to put decent EBITDA margin owing to an increase in operating leverage along with stable diesel prices. Stable EBITDA margin along with lower interest outlay fetched a relatively higher net profit growth of 9% to ₹232.9mn. We maintain our Buy rating with a price target of ₹333.

Muted growth in the Transport, SCM and XPS divisions impacted the growth trajectory

TCIL's sales remained nearly flat on a y-o-y basis largely due to sluggish performance from transport, SCM and XPS divisions. The revenues from the SCM and XPS divisions was unsatisfactory, mainly on account of lower than expected pick up in industrial activities. Over the last two quarters, SCM has witnessed a moderation in growth due to subdued auto export logistics business and a tepid growth in the domestic auto logistics business. However, we believe, this is just temporary blip and SCM will bounce back to its normal growth trajectory from the next quarter onwards. The XPS division also remained under pressure because of a slowdown in high value parcels, which will see an uptick once the economy revives.

The coastal shipping division performed well (y-o-y sales growth 10.6%) on the back of recent vessel additions on the west coast. Going ahead, we believe the SCM, XPS and coastal shipping divisions will drive the growth for the company.

EBITDA margin improved marginally to 7.9%

During the quarter, TCIL reported a y-o-y expansion of 10bps in the EBITDA margin to 7.9%. Higher dry docking expenses to the tune of ₹50mn restricted the otherwise healthy improvement in EBITDA margin. On a like to like basis, EBITDA margin improved by ~100bps y-o-y. Going ahead, we expect the margin to improve from here onwards, with a favorable change in sales mix initiated by the company along with an overall improvement in business dynamics.

Maintain ‘Buy’ with a price target of ₹333

Going ahead, we expect better growth traction on the back of expected improvement in the performance of the SCM and XPS divisions. TCIL currently trades at a PE of 19.6x and 15.9x of FY16E and FY17E earnings respectively. We maintain our ‘Buy’ rating on TCIL with SOTP price target of ₹333. We arrive at our target price by valuing XPS business and other businesses separately.
